IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

THE Hongkong trade mission to Australia seems to have achieved its object in bringing the Colony and its products to the notice of the Australian people.

Hongkong is not geographically far away from Australia, but there is an abysmal ignorance there of what goes on in this part of the world.

Evidence of this is obvious when reading a letter we publish today on page 10, which says in part: "In a recent broadcast by Mr Robin Hutchison (China Mail Editor now on leave) I was very surprised to hear that English was spoken by many people in Hongkong."

It is immaterial that there may be a deficiency in the educational methods in Australia.

What is important is that Hongkong is a mystery to this child of twelve.

One can easily blame the education authorities, but are we as a Colony blameless?

We have also received a letter from an Australian radio station requesting "topical news and views of Hongkong together with cultural aspects" worthwhile for broadcast."

THESE two letters should be sufficient proof that we are lagging behind the times in not selling ourselves to the world.

If we are to "sell" the Colony then we must use all media at our disposal and not go into business in a half-hearted manner.

The programme will be a costly one, but if we remain lethargic, particularly under present world conditions, then there is little hope of expanding our markets.

We must advertise, but we must also have the good-quality goods of quality and up to the sample.

TROUBLE AHEAD

ON June 12 Mr Hammarkjöld declared that the "grievous stage" of the Congo crisis had passed. Has his optimism been justified?

Mr Adoula has been unanimously invested as Prime Minister by both Congolese Senate and National Assembly.

This encouraging development is the product partly of growing political realism among the African themselves.

The Casablanca Powers did nothing to back their verbal support for Lumumba's follower, Mr Giscard; but at least he has been elected Vice-Premier.

However, this growth of political realism among the politicians might well have failed to produce results had it not been for the UN Force. The Lumumbists have returned to Leopoldville only because they have UN guarantees for their safety.

But now Mr Adoula has denounced the Katanga President and the Congo once again faces further unrest.

Common Market: Tories get full backing

The House of Commons tonight overwhelmingly endorsed the Government's decision to negotiate for membership of the European Common Market by 313 votes to five.

Earlier the Commons had rejected a Labour opposition motion critical of the Government's handling of its approach for membership by 318 votes to 209—a Government majority of 109.

On this occasion about 20 Conservatives refused to support the Government and stayed in their seats.

Warning

This group, led by Mr Robert Turton, had warned the Government they would not vote for it if they did not get satisfactory assurances about British sovereignty and safeguards for the Commonwealth and other members of the European Free Trade Association.

They were apparently not satisfied with a statement by Mr Duncan Sandys, Secretary of Commonwealth Relations, who said that the Government had no intention of bringing before the House proposals which would involve "any derogation of British sovereignty outside the sphere specifically covered by the treaty of Rome."

The Labour Party abstained from voting on the Government motion on the grounds that the Government had not given enough facts on which to base a judgment.

But a vote on the motion was forced by a group of Labour members, led by Mr Sydney Silverman, who have been suspended from the Party for disobeying Party voting policy in defence debates.

PASSED IN LORDS

London, Aug. 3.
The House of Lords, without voting, tonight approved the Government's policy of seeking membership of the Common Market. It rejected, by 86 votes to 17, a Labour opposition amendment critical of the Government's handling of the approach for membership.

The amendment also urged that Britain should only enter the Common Market if the negotiated conditions were approved by a Commonwealth Prime Ministers conference. —Reuters.

In the Lords debate Earl Attlee, former Labour Prime Minister, said he would much rather see the development of the British Commonwealth than any concentration solely of European nations.

"I do not regard the union of Europe as a step towards the unity of the world," he said.

To be bound too closely to Europe would suggest to many emerging nations that Britain was "taking a step back to the old ideas of European hegemony and colonialism."

Mr Sandys discounted the suggestion that the Government was confronted with the dilemma of a choice between the Commonwealth and Europe. If he had to make the choice, he would "unquestionably choose the Commonwealth."

But "happily" the Government was not confronted with this dilemma.

Mr Sandys added: "Of all organisations, the Commonwealth is the one which should be the least afraid of change. The Commonwealth is itself the child of change."

Mr George Brown, deputy Labour leader, who summed up for the opposition, said if a treaty could be brought back which met his Party's demands, it would welcome participation in the Common Market.

He said that there was nonsense to pretend that there were no political elements in the community.

In Europe last weekend one of the most powerful men in the community had told him: "If you are coming in believing that this is no more than an economic arrangement, we would much rather you did not come in."

FATHER, SON CHARGED WITH PIRACY OF 707 JET

Washington, Aug. 3.
While a father and son team were being arraigned before a Federal Commissioner in El Paso, Texas, on charges of pirating a Boeing 707 airliner, the Government announced here that permission had been granted to 84 airlines to arm the crews of their aircraft.

The authorisation was sent to all United States air companies by the Federal Aviation Commission.

But the cable stipulated that aircraft crews could be armed only if they have been recently instructed in the use of firearms.

REWARD
In addition, the Commission's director announced that a US$10,000 reward will be paid to anybody supplying information likely to lead to the arrest of "pirates" trying to seize planes.

A similar reward has been offered by the Department of Justice.

In El Paso, lean, wiry Leon Bearden and his slightly-built son, Cody, were arraigned in chains and handcuffs today on charges of pirating a jet airliner and kidnapping its occupants.

WEEKLY REPORT ON THE HONGKONG STOCK EXCHANGE

THE MARKET IMPROVES

But cautious tendency continues

A cautious tendency continued this week on the Hongkong Stock Exchange resulting in a comparatively small volume of business and small price fluctuations.

However, the market showed an improvement over that of last week, particularly at the close of business yesterday when prices firmed.

The China Mail list of shares showed more gains than losses. The main influence on the market, as reported in an earlier China Mail report, continued to be the explosive British situation.

Investors were also watching developments concerning Britain's negotiations for entry into the Common Market.

The turnover for the week under review (Friday to yesterday) amounted to about $19,600,000 compared with $18,300,000 for the previous week.

Market diary

Friday: Business improved today on the Stock Exchange. Interest was widespread upwards. Banks were quiet, but the utilities section was full of business. Telephones having absorbed all the small section of heavy sellers started to rise and put on $1 1/2 with a board full of buyers. Dairy Farms rose steadily to $41. The market closed fairly active.

Turnover was approximately $3,000,000.00.

Thursday: This was another day of cautious trading with a distinct selective tendency. Buyers again predominated but could not, except in a few exceptions, be persuaded to meet the prices offered by the dominant sellers. Nearly all shares dealt in showed some slight improvement led by the two Electricities, of which Lights turned steady above $40.

Sellers at last appeared in Telephones in small quantities and business was done at a higher level than for some time. Star Ferry dividend left the market untouched. Turnover was just short of $4,000,000.00.

Monday: The quiet period continued with buyers seeking cheap bargains and sellers unwilling to meet the demands. Utilities again provided most of the business at steady price outside of which Wavelengths, Lands and Railways were most active. The market closed quiet with turnover of approximately $3,020,000.00.

Tuesday: Interest was again shown in a few stocks. This time, the Electric Companies, Banks, Wavelengths and Lands. Telephones went ex new issue and bonus issue, no sellers appearing to meet the buyers' demands although the offers on the new basis were higher comparatively than the old. Prices generally were steady except in Banks which were fractionally weaker. At the close of one of the quietest days for some time buyers still outnumbered sellers and turnover was approximately $2,550,000.00.

Wednesday: The Stock market showed a much brighter tendency in this half day's trading, most stocks showing a slight improvement on a renewed interest in buying. BELGRADE SUMMIT MEETING SEEKS TO EASE WORLD TENSION—TITO

Speaks at welcome party for Ghana's Nkrumah

Chen Cheng welcomed in New York

MARSHAL TITO

New York, Aug. 3. Vice President Chen Cheng of the Republic of China was greeted warmly by Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City today. They talked about the weather and other small subjects but touched lightly on political matters in their 30-minute meeting.

Actually, they were scheduled to spend one hour together at Gracie Mansion, the Mayor's official residence. However, Wagner was waiting in the reception room, where he presented the city's Bronze Medallion of Honour to Mr Chen.

When he tried to read to Chen the inscription on the Medallion, Wagner handed it to an interpreter, saying, "Maybe your eyes are better than mine."

HONoured

Wagner said he and his wife were honoured to be visited by Vice President and Madame Chen.

"We have a great admiration for him and all the people he represents," the Mayor said. "We admire him as a statesman and soldier. I have followed his land reforming and how much they have meant to his people."

Madame Chen presented gifts of a lacquer tray and brocade material to the Wagners.

Then they retired to the living room where Madame Chen and Mrs. Wagner chatted in English on a lounge. The Vice President and the Mayor stood and talked. With them were Chinese Ambassador to the UN Dr. T. F. Tsiang and Consul-General Mr. K. W. Yu.

At one point, Wagner said to Chen, "I heard you had a good visit in Washington."

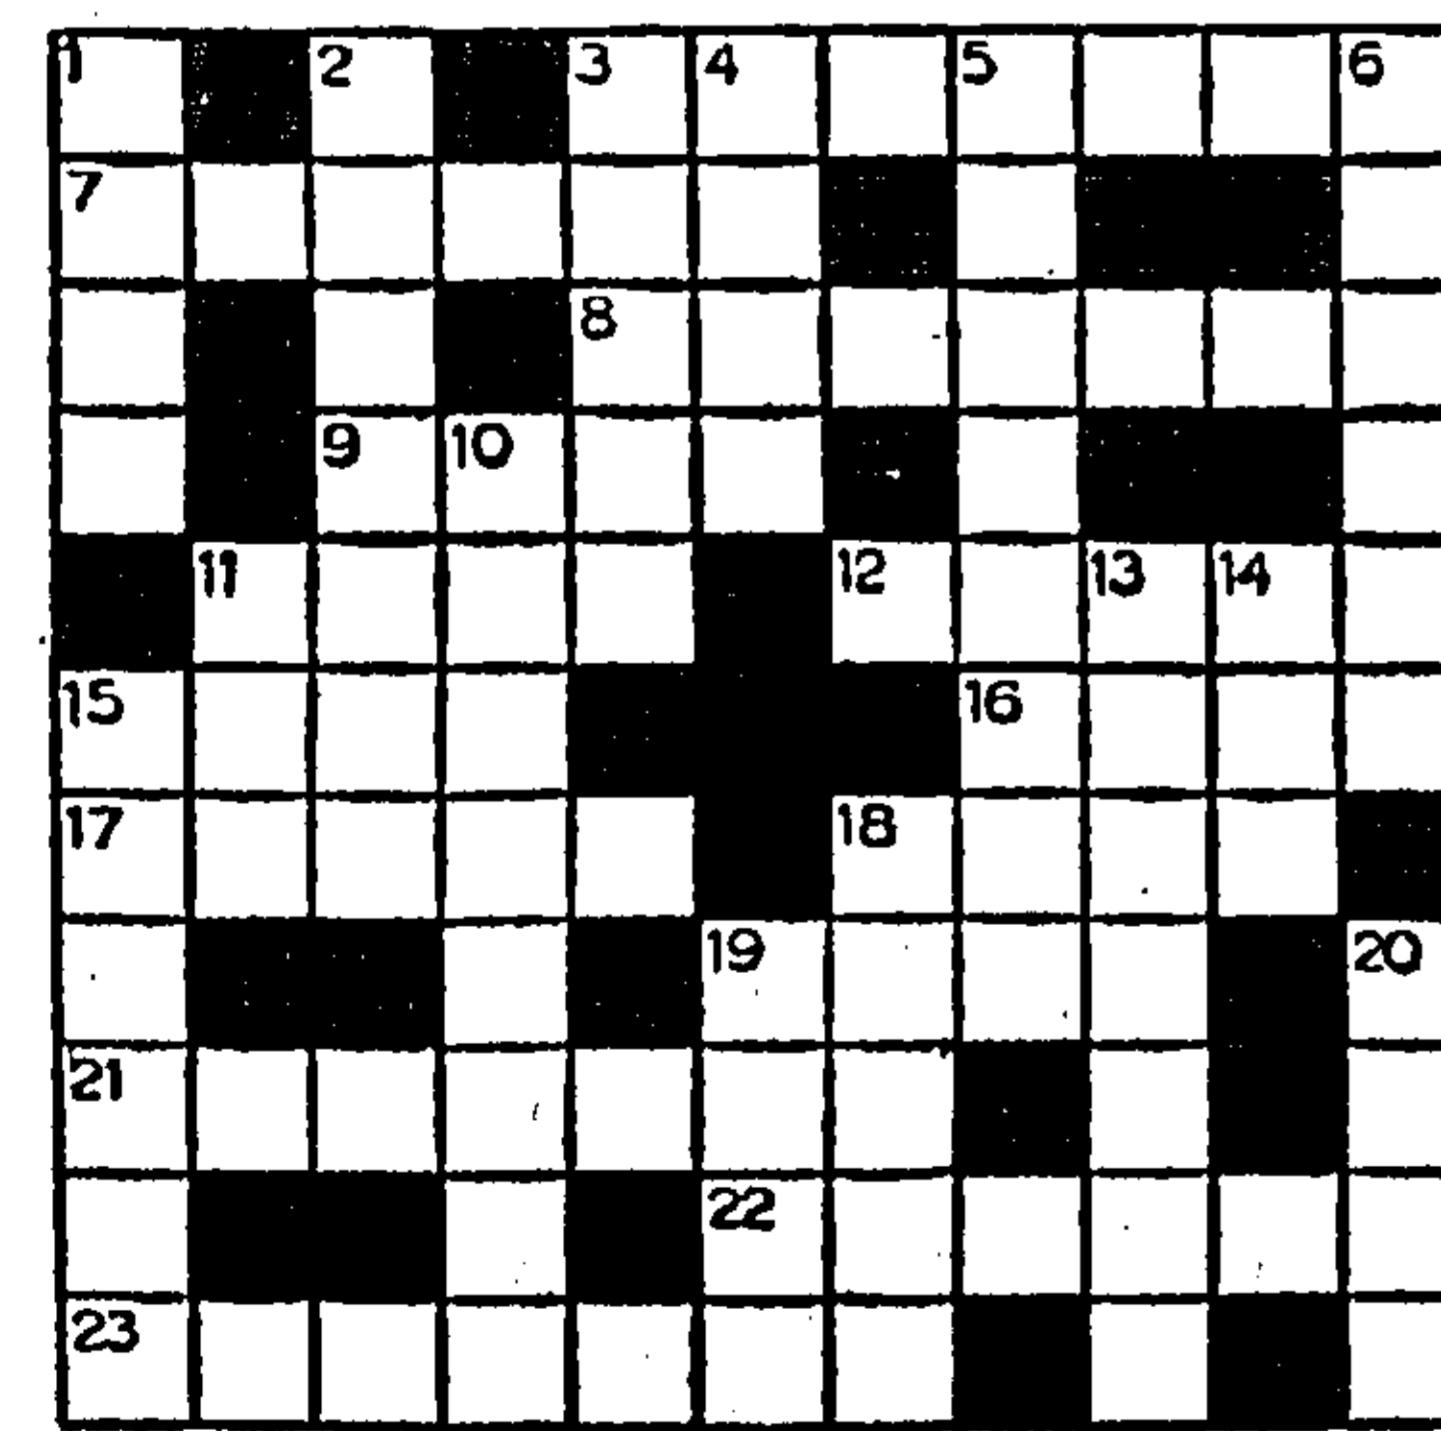

Chen responded in the affirmative, but they didn't dwell on the subject.

President Tito said here today that next month's Belgrade summit meeting of non-aligned countries did not have as its purpose the creating of a new bloc.

The Yugoslav President, speaking at a luncheon here in honour of President Nkrumah of Ghana, who flew in today for a five-day state visit, added:

"On the contrary, we have constantly emphasised that one of the main purposes of the conference, of the policy of active and peaceful coexistence, is to discover ways of overcoming the present division in the world, and how to realise all-round cooperation between the countries and peoples without regard to differences in their social systems."

GREAT EFFORTS

President Tito said the conference would make great efforts, by a constructive analysis of international events, to help to prevent a further worsening of the world situation.

It would also try to find peaceful ways of solving big international problems like the liquidation of colonialism, ending the Cold War, disarmament, and economic aid to underdeveloped countries.—Reuter.

Verwoerd announced the expansion and preliminary reshuffle of his Cabinet yesterday shortly after calling premature new national elections to be held on Oct. 18.

The most noteworthy feature of the Cabinet reconstruction was that Verwoerd now has created separate ministries for each of three non-white racial groups which together form the overwhelming majority of this country's population. But all these ministries are headed by white men as Verwoerd continues his apartheid (strict racial separation) policies.

MAJORITY

The majority blacks long had their separate ministry in the Cabinet headed by white Minister Dewi Nel. Now the 1.5 million coloureds (Bantu) and one-half million Asians and one-half cabinet representation with white men.

The Johannesburg English-language Rand Daily said this Cabinet reconstruction indicated that white supremacist Verwoerd—if he gains five more years in power as generally expected through new elections—will "devote the next five years to a huge attempt to put his four-stream vertical separate development theory into practice."

Non-whites appointed representation in the all-white Cabinet but none of their own people gets into the Cabinet or Parliament. The same applies, too, to the mandated territory of Southwest Africa which now also gets Cabinet representation with a white man.—UPI.

Banda to be offered post in Nyasaland

London, Aug. 3. Dr. Hastings Banda, one-time political detainee, is to be offered a post in the Nyasaland Government later this month.

J. M. Caldecott, Economic Minister for the Central African Federation, told a news conference tonight that the offer will be made to the African nationalist leader after the Aug. 15 Nyasaland General Election.

Banda heads the Malawi Congress Party. He completed a term in a Government detention camp on April 1, 1960.

Caldecott gave no indication but declared:

CHALLENGE

"I am assuming he will accept it and also that he will meet the challenge which that offer of responsibility will present to him." Until now he has been in the position many political leaders like to be in, of being irresponsible.

"Now he will have the opportunity of showing he can be responsible."

Banda would join a long line of political leaders in the British Commonwealth who have attained public office after a period of detention. Notable examples are Premier Nehru of India, President Nkrumah of Ghana and President Makarios of Cyprus.—UPI.

COMMON MARKET

Mr. Turton, leader of the Conservative "rebels" and a former Minister of Health, said it would appear that Britain was being "dragged, kicking and screaming into the Common Market in the arms of the American financial nuns."

He said his group might have few members in the Common tonight, but outside there were "hundreds of thousands of Conservatives who hold the views that I hold."

Mr. Emmanuel Shinwell, a former Labour Defence Minister, who opposes British entry to the Common Market, said:

"Once we associate ourselves with the Common Market, we shall discover we shall be ciphers in the hands of the Adenauer, the de Gaulle, the Speaks and President Kennedy. We shall have no right to call our soul our own."

Parliament would become a parish council with authority of some kind delegated to it by a European parliament and its policy dictated by a European government.—Reuter.

BIG LUNCH

Adelaide, Aug. 3. Driver Harry Thompson, 22, won the South Australian chop-eating championship by gobbling 20 workshops for lunch.

Then, with the title safely in his possession, Thompson ate his 20th chop. He said he really enjoyed that one.—UPI.

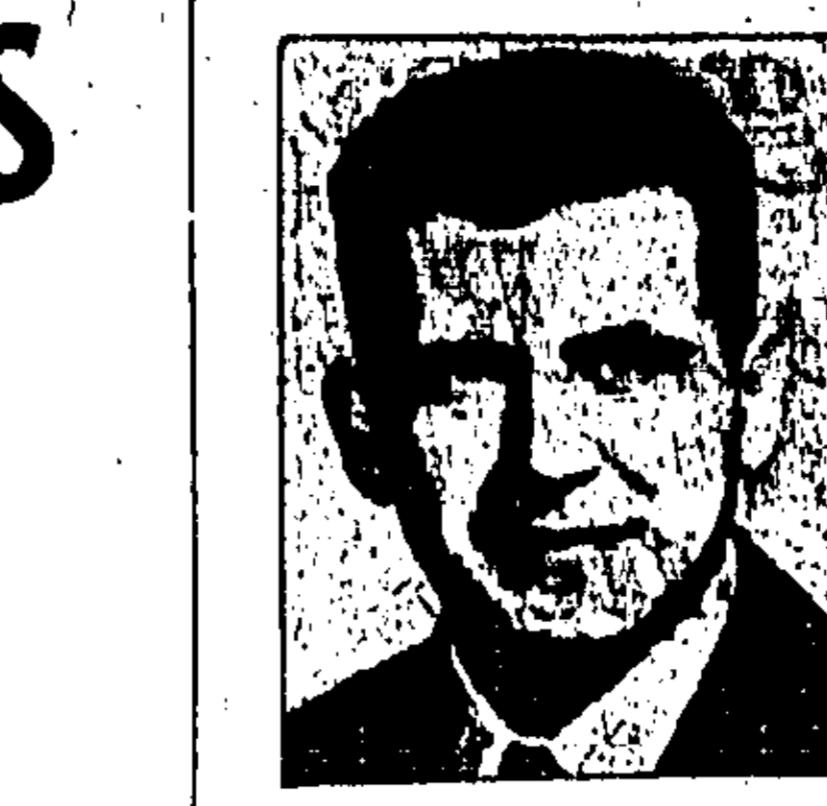

TOKYO, Aug. 3. Barrages of stones were tonight hurled at police in Osaka, Western Japan as residents of the city's slum district opened their third night of violence against law and order.

Police in Osaka, said about 3,000 hooligans were mastiging in the area.

Clashes had occurred between the rioters and steel-helmeted truncheon armed police.

Officials said they feared another night of arson and bloodshed.

About 4,000 police had been called out tonight to try and keep order.—UPI.

GARY POWERS

Powers' wife hopes to visit him in Russia

Georgia, Aug. 3. Mrs. Francis Gary Powers said today she hopes to visit her husband, the American U2 pilot imprisoned as a spy in Russia, when he is transferred to a work camp.

Powers wrote his parents in Norton, Virginia, that he hopes to be paroled to a work camp within three months, a year and a half before expiration of the three-year prison sentence he received. He is under an additional sentence of seven years in a Soviet work colony.

Mrs. Powers has not seen her husband since his trial in Moscow.

"Gary and I have planned and hoped that when he is transferred to a work camp I may join him for a short time," Mrs. Powers said at her home here today.

FIRM VIEW

He would not for a moment deny that a European role for Britain was an important role, he added.

He went on:

"I understand it is a firm view of the United States Government that negotiations aimed at a modification of the Rome treaty would be unacceptable to them and opposed by them."

Mr. Heath replied:

"It is completely untrue that the President of the United States or any member of the Administration has said what Mr. Wilson said, so far as the Prime Minister or the foreign policy of this country are concerned."

"It is unjustifiable that Mr. Wilson should have said it."

Mr. Heath added:

"The view of the United States is that if it can see a strengthening of the political unity of Europe, then it is justified in accepting that degree of discrimination."

"That is the position which is perfectly clear and which we can understand fully."—UPI.

STRAIN

"If I went to Russia now, I would be allowed to visit him only one hour a month. It is a terrible strain on both of us because I'm not familiar with the people or the language and I probably wouldn't know where to work."

"We hope that when he is transferred to a work camp we might be allowed more time together."

Mrs. Powers said she regularly receives two letters a month from her husband. She sends him packages of clothing, cigarettes and other items every month.

While his letters are not hopeful, she said, "he is taking the punishment for doing what he did for his country as well as anyone could be expected."

POISON

Barranquilla, Aug. 3. A prisoner working in the kitchen of the city jail served coffee containing rat poison to nine guards yesterday, apparently as a prelude to a jailbreak, and five of them were on the critical list in a hospital here today.

The ninth guard, who drank no coffee, sounded the alarm and frustrated the escape attempt.—UPI.

MAC DENIES GOVT NEWS BLACKOUT

London, Aug. 3. The Prime Minister, Mr Harold Macmillan, today disputed a Labour MP's claim that a recent defence notice to British newspaper editors had "increased very much the blanket blackout on news."

He said the old "D" notices asked for a general restriction on information about all kinds of weapons and equipment, while the new notice, issued on July 27, specified what information could not be published and left it open to the press to publish any information not specified.

RESTRICTIVE

Therefore, the new notice was less restrictive than the old one. George Brown, deputy leader of the Labour opposition and defence spokesman for the Party, said that the new notice appeared to have greatly increased the blanket blackout on news.

Mr. Macmillan said the new "D" notice had been issued after it had been agreed to in draft by the press representatives of the Services Press and Broadcasting Committee (SPBC).

Agreeing to consider whether the press was satisfied with the notice, he pointed out that the press made its own appointments to the SPBC.

The Prime Minister also agreed to refer the matter to the Radcliffe Committee—established by the Government to probe British security in the wake of two recent spy trials—and ask their advice.

"D" notices are confidential to editors advising them what they should not publish in the national interest.—Reuter.

UK, Russia break deadlock at Laos talks

Geneva, Aug. 3. Britain and the Soviet Union today broke the procedural deadlock of the 14-nation Laos conference here.

Mr. Georgi Pushkin, for Russia, reported that he and Mr. Malcolm Macdonald, his British Co-Chairman, had agreed on how to deal with the stumbling-block concerning a ban on foreign troops and basis in a neutral Laos, conference sources said.

Their proposal, which the conference adopted with certain reservations, was that the drafting committee would draw up general understandings on this issue, but these would not cover the specific position of French instructors, permitted under the 1954 Geneva agreements on Indo-China.—Reuter.

WARNING ON WRONG USE
OF DRUGS

London, Aug. 3.
The regular and indiscriminate use of drugs was condemned in Manchester today by Professor A. D. Macdonald, Professor of Pharmacology at Manchester University in a newsletter published by the Chest and Heart Association.

"Many drugs so potent for good, are also potent for evil," he said. He also warned that products advertised to the public rarely carried adequate warning against the possibilities of side-actions.

SIX DANGERS

Professor Macdonald listed the following six dangers against self-medication:

Choosing the wrong drug; taking the wrong dose; side-effects; interference with the effects of other drugs; the risk of the body getting used to the drug that loses its efficiency; and suppressing a symptom thus leading to neglect of the inadequate treatment of a curable disease at an early stage.

"I condemn the regular use of medicines and the belief that health can be built on drugs," he added.—China Mail Special.

ORDERS BOOKED

'OSCAR WILDE'

Russia will buy prize-winning
British film

Moscow, Aug. 3.
The Soviet Film Organisation has agreed to buy "The Trials Of Oscar Wilde," the British film which took three awards at the Moscow Film Festival earlier this month.

Mr Gerald Severn, a Moscow-born Londoner who has United States citizenship, told Reuters that Soviet officials told him the film would be bought and a contract would be signed in London later.

He declined to name the price of the film, made by Warwick Film of London, but observers said the Soviet Union usually pays between £10,000 and £15,000 for such films.

DEBATE!

Mr. Severn said he first had to "debate" the merits of the film with the Soviet Culture Ministry before the decision to buy was made.

When he first brought the film here to show the Russians last September, he said, Soviet officials had said it was "very beautiful but we cannot show it to the public."

Mr. Severn said the Russians do not like to show "private life" themes, and also were unwilling to cast a shadow on the character of Wilde, whose personal tragedy was largely unknown to the new generation here.

"It had to debate with the selection committee of the Culture Ministry," he said. "I proved to them it was not private life, but had become public through the trials.

"It also told them it neither whitewashed Wilde nor accused him."

In the Moscow Film Festival, Peter Finch in the title role of the film took an award for the best male actor, designer Bill Constant was the award for the best settings, and the film's 19th century costumes brought the prize for the best costumes to Terence Morgan.—China Mail Special.

She was fined £1 for failing to send the boy and his eight-year-old brother to school.—China Mail Special.

UK CIVIL SERVANTS
PROTEST

London, Aug. 3.
Leaders of Britain's 600,000 civil servants had warned the Government that interference with pay negotiations would lead to "a damaged, dissatisfied and disgruntled civil servant."

The warning came in a letter from the staff side of the National Whitley Council, a consultative body for negotiating civil service pay, protesting against civil servants being singled out for special treatment under the Government's new austerity wage pause policy.

The letter, addressed to Sir Norman Brook, Permanent Secretary to the Treasury, pointed out that civil servants were already lagging behind public sector workers because wages in general had gone up by three and a half per cent since the last review of civil service pay.

BULLDOZE
HOSPITAL
SAYS
DOCTOR

London, Aug. 3.
Hospital board chiefs want to spend £5,000,000 on moving the aged and chronic sick from out-of-date hospitals to new accommodation.

That is what it will cost Birmingham Royal Hospital Board to build 80 self-contained units for the old folk.

The plan follows a report by Dr. Joseph Sheldon, the board's senior adviser on the care of old folk, recommending widespread improvements at many Midlands hospitals.

Said Dr. David Rhys-Davies, the board's vice-chairman,

"We are not ashamed of the report. We are proud of it.

"The only remedy is to bulldoze all the dilapidated buildings."

He denied there had been any attempt to suppress Dr. Sheldon's findings, which referred to derelict slum hospitals and dilapidated wards from which old folk knew they will not return.

"We withdrew copies of the report which had been circulated to our members to make some additions and to correct certain figures—but NOT to materially change the report," he said.

—(London Express Service).

A spokesman for the group, Mr. Kennedy said:

"I know they are coming to the Côte d'Azur [the Riviera]. Certainly they will come to visit me and I'll be very happy to see them. But they will not go to a hotel because I just don't have the room at my place to put them up. I have only one empty bedroom on the first floor."—AP.

Distasteful—but we MUST recognise East Germany

By Paul Johnson

AFTER three months of uncertainty, President Kennedy has now approved war plans to meet a crisis over Berlin.

He has announced part of them publicly—including vast and expensive measures to increase the stand-by striking-power of U.S. conventional forces in Europe.

He did not reveal the actual "contingency plan" itself, that is, the military action the US will take along the Berlin corridors if Russia hands over control of them to the East Germans.

But it is thought the plan goes a long way to meet the wishes of Pentagon commanders for direct action. The supporters of the "hard line" have won a qualified victory.

Hence the world faces its most serious crisis since the Chinese intervened in Korea.

MacArthur demanded to use the A-bomb.

For Mr Khrushchev appears equally determined to "solve" the Berlin anomaly, as he calls it. He has committed himself to this not only in public, but more specifically in private talks with leaders of the Communist bloc who are critical of his blind-glove handling of the West.

What is more, he has publicly and repeatedly asserted that the Allies attempt to enforce their rights along the Berlin corridor by military means, then the Soviet army will intervene. If this happens, the use of nuclear weapons would be inevitable.

It seems incredible that either side should be ready to risk nuclear suicide over the legal status of a single city. Unfortunately, much more is at stake.

Khrushchev is now fighting for the survival of Herr Ulbricht's Communist regime in East Germany.

Ulbricht is now like a rat in a corner. Thanks to his mad bigotry in going ahead with forced collectivization of agriculture in 1953, food-stocks in East Germany are desperately low.

Ulbricht's difficulties far more serious.

Many East Germans, who had hitherto hesitated about crossing to the West, are now pouring across the frontier before their escape-route is cut off. Last week, the emigration reached 2,000 a day. Most of these people are skilled craftsmen and technicians, the majority under 25. No state—least of all Ulbricht's ramshackle kingdom—can stand a drain on this scale.

So, if he is to prevent a total collapse in East Germany, which could have repercussions throughout the satellite empire, Khrushchev must act fast.

Russia, after last year's bad harvest, is in no position to help. To get money to buy food, Ulbricht has been forcing production "norms" in East German factories. As a result, discontent there is now reaching the crisis-level which, in 1953, brought the explosion of East Berlin.

What is worse, by his very act of threatening a showdown in Berlin, Khrushchev has made Ulbricht's difficulties far more serious.

Many East Germans, who had hitherto hesitated about crossing to the West, are now pouring across the frontier before their escape-route is cut off. Last week, the emigration reached 2,000 a day. Most of these people are skilled craftsmen and technicians, the majority under 25. No state—least of all Ulbricht's ramshackle kingdom—can stand a drain on this scale.

So, if he is to prevent a total collapse in East Germany, which could have repercussions throughout the satellite empire, Khrushchev must act fast.

Prince Charles broke up his term at Cheam recently. Worldwide guesswork are already sent him to Gateshead in September and his best friend, David Dawkes, to Charterhouse.

Both guesses are quite wrong. Prince Charles will not go to Eton in September and if the Queen and Prince Philip have made a final decision on his future education during the last month, it is likely to be their best kept secret for many months.

Hence, distasteful though it may be, the West must aid Ulbricht. Clearly in common humanity, we cannot acquiesce in shutting down the Berlin frontier. We have an overriding moral duty to permit the refugees to escape.

But we can help to stabilise East Germany by granting it recognition. However disagreeable this might be to Dr Adenauer, it would cost the West nothing.

On the contrary, by leading to more trade and contacts with East Germany, it would actually improve the lot of its citizens and so reduce tension in Berlin.

In return, we could demand assurances that the corridors will be kept open. We might even get Ulbricht to agree to grant Allied troops the right to patrol them. We could certainly oblige him to endorse formally the precepts of a reunited, armed Germany, allied to the West. Khrushchev will almost certainly go to war.

We could certainly oblige him to endorse formally the precepts of a reunited, armed Germany, allied to the West. Khrushchev will almost certainly go to war.

Indeed, with tension in Berlin reduced, both the West and Russia would be able to go ahead with their planned reductions in armed forces—which have now been interrupted.

One still comes across the comical argument that if the laws were relaxed, it would stop many from going to church, as though afternoon amusements would interfere with morning services.

And those who fall a second time—wherever a single mark below the number required often means failure—are increasing even more.

Most boys of 12½ and 13½ now do a lot of extra work in the school to help them over the common entrance. The problem is always before them, and the parents, if not the boys, tend to have a peaceful moment until it is safely over and the boys' future assured.

If it seems extremely likely, he is an average small boy, that will not be until January or even May of 1962.

It is reasonable to suppose that Prince Charles had a first go at common entrance work with his contemporaries at Cheam at the end of June.

The results of this work are likely to form the basis for his lessons next term at Cheam and he is certain to have another go at common entrance in November.

It is on the results of this work that the final decision on his schooling is likely to be taken.

Having chosen the average prep school life for Prince Charles, they must have decided that he is likely to have another go at common entrance in November.

It is on the results of this work that the final decision on his schooling is likely to be taken.

The Queen and Prince Philip may certainly have discussed several public schools for their son, but unless the approach of the school and the life it offers is likely to suit Prince Charles at the age he should go to his public school—between 13 and 13½—a great deal of thought will obviously be given before a final decision is made.

There are many public schoolmasters in England today who think that the scholastic scramble for public school places is likely to prove a bad thing for both the boys and the public schools.

People with wide experience of young boys do not think it a good thing that two of the most important years of their life—between 12 and 14—should be almost wholly occupied with worry about work and exams, unless they are brighter than average.

I am sure that all parents who have boys the same age as Prince Charles are wholly in favour of his parents choosing a school that they think most suit him, regardless of its name or otherwise.

FOR A CHILD'S SAKE... A SIXPENNY PLEA IN A SHOP WINDOW

by

Donald Gomery

AN advertisement in a shop window caught my eye. "Good home wanted for child aged three," it said.

Young Johnny is seeking a place in someone's heart and a small spot in the sunshines of Britain.

Now you may be astonished, and a little horrified (as I was) that children are being advertised in shop windows at £1 a week in this way.

The advertiser: the London County Council, biggest local authority in the country.

"The truth is we are desperate for foster-parents," said Mr John Wilson Wheeler.

Mr Wheeler is grey of hair and kind of manner, is children's officer for London County Council, has two children himself (one of them adopted), and has 8,000 others in his care.

THE BOY

Young Johnny, now. He's one. There is nothing exceptional about him. If you think he's a blue-eyed little orphan angel-boy, you're wrong.

He's just an ordinary little boy, with an ordinary little boy's faults and lovesickness.

There are 61,000 other little boys and girls like Johnny in the care of local authorities in England and Wales.

Of these 61,000, nearly half—28,000—have found homes with foster-parents. That leaves 33,000 without a place to call their own this weekend. They are in children's homes, or other council homes, which, as I have seen, are comfortable and the staff most kindly; but they are not homes.

Thirty-three thousand little boys and girls without a home.

Would you like to help a little boy like Johnny in the advertisement? First of all, do you feel all sentimental about taking him into your own home? If you do, then almost certainly you are not the person for Johnny.

THE JOB

Said Alice Carter: "Some people might just as well go out and buy a puppy or take a child into their home."

Miss Carter is grey of hair and kind of manner, very human—and very realistic. You have to be in her job. She is a children's welfare officer.

She added: "Do you know who makes the best foster-mother? The so-called 'professional' foster-parent."

The "professional" foster-parent will take in several children, perhaps, over the years, seeing them come and go, and unsafely happy that she had been able to make others a little happier too.

"They're the ones worth their weight in gold," said Margaret Heywood, who is Alice Carter's assistant.

This is a job, you see. One needing love, patience, tolerance; need the qualities you should show towards your own children. But with it you must realise, said Mr. Wheeler, that the true parents can always demand—and get—the child back again; just with a snap of their fingers.

That is the big difference between being a foster-parent and adopting a child.

One thing a foster-parent must never expect. Gratitude. I found that rather strange; gratitude seemed natural enough.

"But children don't give gratitude," said Margaret Heywood. "After all, do you expect your own children for looking after them?"

'Status symbol' funerals are attacked

AMERICANS have the world's highest standards of living... and dying. Next to houses and cars, funerals now rate as the average U.S. family's biggest single expense. The annual national burial budget is estimated at 2,000 million dollars.

Grief therapy. Their attitude is that "relatives feel better about their loss if they can turn on a super-duper funeral. The more they spend the better the therapy."

But Los Angeles sociologist Dr. Robert Fulton says that a poll he conducted proved that a majority of Protestant ministers and 41 per cent of Catholic priests believed that undertakers were exploiting families' grief.

He pointed to a recent article in a funeral directors' trade magazine. In one of its selling points it urged undertakers never to exceed the price tag on their coffins.

Their approach, the magazine said: "Think of the beautiful memory picture you will have of your dear father in this beautiful casket."

Undertakers claim that while funeral bills have risen almost 60 per cent in the last 10 years, people have gone up only six per cent.

A New York hospital gives this advice: "Will your body be a hospital or research institute contribution to science? And bear that final bill!"

You're one or the other but the question is which?

ONE of my sweater memories used to concern a strong, silent youth who swept me from my feet and hockey stick when I was just approaching fourteen years old. The fact that he said so little, hardly ever moved a muscle in his splendid, shiny, pink face and really personified a word I'd rarely heard of in those days — phlegmatic — had convinced me then of one thrilling thing: the boy was "deep."

Looking back, I realise it evident, imprisoned forever hadn't in his early days given us undoubtedly part of his between static fair eyebrows, away one clue.

It was a nasty shock the other day to have him clip my ticket in the underground.

AT ITALIAN SHOWINGS —

Waists high... skirts go down

Florence. SIMONETTA of Rome sees the ideal woman of 1962 as a flat, narrow-shouldered figure with a skirt flaring from a high waist to halfway down her calf.

The suits and coats of her collection—presented at the Italian fashion show here—have sleeves that have been brought forward to make the chest appear narrower, while the waist is placed high—at the Empire level.

Both Simonetta and her husband, Fabiani of Rome, have lowered their hemlines to about four inches below the knee for daytime, and a little lower on evening clothes.

Publani showed a cone-shaped, steel grey coat whose lower half, made of Persian lamb was sewn onto a flannel bodice at a high waistline. It was narrow-sleeved and double-breasted.

Much admired was a reversible fur coat, with leopard on one side and black astrakhan on the other.

Mink full tips, sewn along the bottom of the jacket were the only decoration of a black woolen suit by Fabiani. It had the usual narrow shoulders, a hip-length, high-waisted jacket and bell-shaped skirt.

Except for a figure-moulding, naturally curved evening dress made of Lammoire fur, Fabiani's afternoon and evening dresses followed the high-waisted, narrow-chested coney silhouette.

They were softened, however, by the light-weight and gay coloured fabrics, being chiffon, and a great deal of lace and satin.—China Mail Special.

Chirpie's New Home

—He Now Lives In An Apartment Tree—

By MAX TRELL

CHIRPIE Sparrow came to the window sill for his morning bread crumbs.

"I've just moved," he announced to Knarf and Hand, the Shadow Children with the Turned-About Names, after he had eaten four or five of the crumbs.

"It's much better than my old place."

Hand laughed and said that she was glad to hear that Chirpie had moved to a place that was better than his old place.

"Why are you laughing?" asked Chirpie.

Why she's laughing.

Hand explained she was laughing because she didn't know what Chirpie's old place was.

"That's right, you never told us," said Knarf.

Chirpie looked up from his bread crumbs in surprise.

"Well," he asked, "Well, my old place was a space between two loose bricks at the bottom of the chimney of that old house on the other side of the vacant lot."

As he spoke, Chirpie pointed with his wing to the old house on the other side of the vacant lot. Knarf and Hand saw that it was pretty shabby place.

How's now home?

"And what kind of a home are you in now?" asked Hand, really glad now to know that Chirpie had moved away from his old place.

"It's an apartment tree," he said.

Knarf and Hand said that they had heard of apartment houses but this was the first time they had heard of an apartment tree.

"What's an apartment house?" asked Chirpie.

Knarf and Hand explained that an apartment house was a house in which lots of different families all lived in their separate apartments.

"They all live in the same house," said Hand, "only they have different rooms and have different doorbells and different mail boxes and different rooms."

"The only thing that's the same," said Knarf, "is the number of the house."

"Well," said Chirpie, when he had heard all this, "an apartment tree is pretty much the same thing."

A whole lot of us birds all live in the same tree but each family has its own separate branch. Some of my neighbours even live on their own separate twigs and leaves.

"One of the neighbours lives in the roots of the tree and the other lives in the trunk."

Here Hand interrupted to say that the owner of an apartment house was called a landlord.

Other birds.

Chirpie shook his head.

"We don't call our owner that," he said. "We call him the landlord. He's a Squirrel. He lives in a hole in the trunk right on the first floor—I mean, the first branch."

Knarf and Hand asked Chirpie to tell them who his neighbours were in his apartment tree.

"Well," said Chirpie, "there's the Robin family, and the Thrush family and a whole lot of Pigeons and another Sparrow family."

"I'm way up on the top branch. I've got the best view in the whole apartment tree."

Knarf reminded Chirpie that he had said that some of his neighbours lived on their own separate twigs and leaves. He wanted to know what neighbours Chirpie meant.

"It's the Chirps," said Chirpie.

Knarf and Hand let out a scream.

Chipmunk lived down in the root of the tree.

"Cats in the trees!" cried Hand in an alarmed voice.

But they'll eat up all the Birds!"

"And, anyway," said Knarf, "I don't see how a Cat can live on a leaf or a twig."

Chirpie was shaking his head and saying No-no-no-no.

"You didn't let me finish. I didn't mean Cats with four legs and a tail. I meant Caterpillars with about forty legs and no tail."

The trouble with those Caterpillar neighbours," Chirpie went on, "is that they eat themselves right out of their house. Just imagine anyone eating the floors and walls and ceilings! Pretty stupid, I think."

Lives in collar.

Chirpie said that the neighbour who lived in the root of the tree—"I suppose you might call it the cellar of the apartment tree," he said—"was a fellow named Chipmunk.

"I guess he must like it down there," he went on. "I know I wouldn't live there. It's much too dark and damp."

Chirpie now finished eating the rest of his bread crumbs.

"The only thing we haven't got in our apartment tree," he said, "is a window sill like this. But the whole tree is like a window. It's a wonderful improvement for a bird like me."

JACOBY on BRIDGE

FOR some time back most bridge writers have recognised the difficulty of covering the subject of minor suit jump raises by just forgetting about the whole thing. They do say that the jump from one to three is a game force, but they never give an example because it is too difficult to have to point out that since 20 points are necessary for a minor suit game you need more strength for a minor suit jump than for a major suit.

Because of this frame of mind — shared, I'm sure, by many — I applaud the Ingram family, Siella and Stanley, who now have under one roof a service that takes care of everything from the ears up.

Starting as a hearing-aid consultancy, they went on to add

BELOW STAIRS

TO please the protesters who have cried to him constantly they "want to be alone," Sarah Bernhardt bone in my body, I did a little study.

I came to the conclusion that even people like Gerald Nabarro were "phlegic" despite the huge grin that often nestled beneath the handlebar moustache...

I also decided that despite a few fellow "phleges" (like Jean Dwyer, Michael Miles, Billy Butlin and Jack Colton—short men aren't good at hiding anything), we deserved our old reputation abroad of being a nation of stiff-upper-lippers...

In the streets, on the buses, everywhere I went I realised as never before that I was surrounded by deadpan people... rushing, crushing, dashing people, all with little or no expression.

When later at the first sticky situation I tried to achieve a touch of the old sang-froid—it didn't work. I gathered if I wanted to be mysterious, it would have to be verbally or not at all.

True "phleges" are, therefore, born not made—but before I became too depressed, another thought struck me: would Gagarin have been such a success, if he hadn't shown with his sunny, expressive face how much he was enjoying himself?

What do you think? Is it better to be a "phleg" or a "flash"? Write and tell me and I'll pay 5 guineas for the best letter, 2 gns for any other published.

Long-time lovers of the bicycle, the young French are now spending more and more of their courting days on bicycles made for two and so matching "tandem outfit" like the one shown here in dark striped cotton, are going into the shops all over the country.

As straw boaters are often suggested to complete the ensembles you can tell the cycling is strictly the gentle kind with plenty of "walking and wheeling up the steep hills."

The idea of matching outfits for sweethearts could easily move over here, but it's doubtful if they would retain the same name because, despite Mr and Mrs Marples, dedicated tandem types, cycling as a pastime for those in love or not, doesn't increase in popularity in this country . . . it will only appeal to 16 per cent of the population in the summertime.

Keen struggle for County Cricket lead

CLOSE, TRUEMAN PUT YORKSHIRE BACK INTO FIGHTING POSITION

First innings points for Middlesex, Hants

Brian Close, the man who came in for most of the criticism after England had been beaten in the fourth Test by Australia, was the hero of English County champions, Yorkshire, today.

Cyclist crashes against car at end of race

Sherbrooke, Aug. 3. Kull Napper, a 23-year-old Indianapolis, Indiana, cyclist today suffered a double fracture of the right leg and a fracture of the right elbow when he hit a moving car at the finish line of the fifth stage of the Tour Du Laurents, played race.

Napper, competing in the 8th annual race as an independent, was racing at full speed when his bicycle veered into a car, driven by one of the race officials.

He was taken to St Vincent Hospital where he underwent surgery.

Dr Marcel Cloutier, who performed the surgery, said Napper's condition was good. The cyclist will remain in the hospital at least 15 days.

The accident occurred as the racers arrived for a luncheon break in this city, 83 miles east of Montreal. Apparently a car and edged through a police cordon into the path of the racers.

Napper crashed into one car, was thrown clear, and fell upon another vehicle. Other racers were piled up in the mishap but none was seriously injured.—AP.

Setback for League-leading Yankees

New York, Aug. 4. Bob Shaw, pitching his best game since he was acquired from Chicago two months ago, led New York's power hitters to six hits tonight as the Kansas City Athletics beat the Yankees, 6-1.

Kansas City's triumph, in its last game of the season at Yankee Stadium, narrowed the Yankees' first place lead to a game and a half over Detroit, a 2-1 winner over Washington in an afternoon game.

PAVED THE WAY

An exciting first inning, in which two Yankee errors, together with three Kansas City hits, gave the Athletics three unearned runs and paved the way for Bud Daley's 15th loss against eight victories.

Shaw had a shutout until the sixth inning when Yogi Berra singled home Roger Maris, who had opened the inning with a single and advanced to second on a walk to Mickey Mantle. The veteran right-hander, en route to his second victory, en route to his second victory, 15 decisions, had been beaten only by slipping of Elston Howard on a line drive to the third baseman and striking out Bill Skowron.

TWO BRITISH 'FIRSTS'

Christy O'Connor

five-stroke lead

Edinburgh, Aug. 3. Christy O'Connor, the Irish Ryder Cup player, shot a great 65 in an unrelenting downpour today to streak into a five-stroke lead in the half-way point of the 2,300 Carling Caldewell Professional Golf Tournament. O'Connor's 30 holes total of 127 is only one stroke outside the British tournament record of 126 set by Tom Haliburton (Wentworth, Surrey) at Worthing nine years ago.

The 36-year-old Irish golf star revelled in the grim conditions, pitching and putting with supreme skill on the soaked greens. He tamed the 6,213 yards Longniddry Course down to an outward half of 33 and an inward 32.

Lying second to O'Connor, on 132, is Bernard Hunt (Aberdour), who earlier in the day broke the record for the Longniddry Course, by one stroke with a 64. Harry Weetman (Selston Park), who went round the Luffness New Course in 64, is lying third on 133.—Reuter.

EXCITING FINISH TO ARMY INTER-UNIT ATHLETIC CHAMPIONSHIPS

Parachute Regt win in last event

By ARCHIE QUICK

London. The most exciting finish that can be remembered in the long honourable history of the Army Inter-Unit Athletic Championships had the khaki-clad ranks of spectators at Aldershot last week on their feet roaring home their favourites and the result of the pulsating finals was that 1st Battalion The Parachute Regiment beat the 2nd Battalion Grenadier Guards by winning the last event of the day, the four times 440 yards relay, by inches!

Parachute Regt 123 points, the Grenadiers 119 and the RE's 109. Just to show how hectic it all was, the winning time of 3 mins 26.9 secs was a new Army record and the Grenadiers equalled the existing record of 3 mins 27.6 secs.

With Kitchener were Ptes D. Pearson, K. Repper and K. Foyning. The "Paras" were winners in 1949, 1950, 1955 and 1957 and runners-up in 1954.

The runners set off level, but Kitchener had just that touch of class to beat his regiment through amid intense excitement. That gave the three other Army records were surpassed—in the hammer throw, pole vault and 4 x 880 yards relay. The Parachute Regiment's two men in the pole vault were S1 G. Morris and Pte. J. Lee, who each cleared 12 ft to beat the existing aggregate of 23 ft 6 ins by six inches, and in the hammer throw the Grenadiers' two of SMI A. Painter (120 ft 2 1/4 ins) and L/Cpl. Hughes (100 ft 4 1/4 ins) beat the best of 220 ft 8 1/4 ins by 2 ft 6 1/4 ins. In the four half miles the RE's record-breaking four were 2/Lts H. Muir and R. Mauer, L/Cpl J. Gibson and Spt. J. Reynolds. Their time of 8 mins 0.9 secs improved on the old time by 3.3 secs.

Disqualification

The fight for the Championship, in which four Guards Regiments had reached the Finals for the first time ever, would have been even closer but for an unfortunate disqualification in the 4 x 220 yards relay which deprived the RE's of 14 points.

But for this they would have been runners-up. In the last "leg" of the event the RE runner cut in on the first bend and baulked an opponent and was sent off for disqualification after his team had finished second. Even so, with the winning time of the four times 880 yards race, the Royal Engineers now hold every track record at the Aldershot Military Stadium from 100 yards to three miles.

Cpl. Dominic Kelly, the English International, and S1 Bn RAOC and Army three miles record holder, scored a notable "double" by winning the three miles and the one mile team races, while Depot L/Cpl. Simpson figured in both the 88 stones and 100 stones tug-of-war finals, and won the latter. The Gordon Highlanders took the lighter events.

A peculiar feature of the Championships was that the Grenadier Guards, stationed at Dusseldorf, landed eight firsts, two seconds and three thirds to the Parachute Regt's six firsts, one second and two thirds. It looks anomalous, but the answer is that the Parachute Regt scored their firsts in events producing greater numbers of points.

For the first time, a Minor Units Championship was held for establishments of 200 strength and under. This was won by 10 Parachute Ordnance Field Park /RE.M.E., stationed at Farnborough, with 62 points, with 10 Coy RAOC (43 points) and 10 Dep't East Anglian Brigade (37 points) second and third respectively.—Banwra Service.

S. African Test cricketer to live in England

Plymouth, Aug. 3. Russell Endean, the former South African Test cricketer, arrived here by sea with his family today—possibly for good.

Mr. Endean, a 37-year-old chartered accountant, has spent his life in Johannesburg but is now considering prospects for himself and his family in England.

Travelling with him were his London-born wife Muriel, whom he met on the South African Test tour in England in 1958, and their three-year-old son, Mark, and four-month-old daughter, June.

"My wife is quite keen to come back and live in England," said Mr. Endean. "She has never really settled down in Johannesburg."—China Mail Special.

'Myth' heads team for Admiral's Cup

London, Aug. 1. Myth of Malham, Quiver III, and Griffin II are the three yachts chosen by the Royal Ocean Racing Club to represent Britain in the Admiral's Cup.

By JACK KNIGHTS

Her only class win this season was when Captain Jack Coote skippered it Dindar (not to be aboard in any of the Admiral's Cup events).

Drumbeat has beaten her on the two occasions they have raced together this season.

Drumbeat, unfortunately, missed both the North Sea and Dindar races, so probably didn't qualify for selection.

But it would have been nice to have had a beamy, shallow, America-type boat such as Drumbeat in our team to take on the foreigners on their own terms.

Griffin II will be skippered in the match by the vastly experienced Major Gerald Poiter.

American bid

Of the opposition, I fancy the chances of the Americans with Hank du Pont's aluminum Cyanide, Bill Shultz's Figaro, and Jacob Abramson's powerful Windrose.

The Swedish team includes Sven Hansson's Anitra which won the last Fastnet, and the Dutch have the famous cutters Coraib and Zwerver, which won the Britannia Cup the year before last.

If all the foreign yachts arrive on time our team will have to sail right on top of them to win. Given plenty of bare winds from ahead, they might just do it.

America can regain Wightman Cup

Says JOHN COTTRELL

Britain's tennis girls, who have won only two of the past 24 Wightman Cup contests, go to Chicago shortly to defend the trophy with their strongest-ever team (on paper).

It comprises the Wimbledon and British hard court champion (Angela Mortimer), the Wimbledon runner-up (Christine Truman), the French champion (Ann Haydon) and the Surrey champion and British hard Court finalist (Deirdre Catt).

Yet I believe the Americans have a great chance of regaining the Wightman Cup — even though there will be strenuous doubt about their star player, national champion Darlene Hard, who missed Wimbledon because of jaundice.

Far from fit

The fitness of the British players is also suspect. Miss

Mortimer has suffered a recurrence of tennis elbow which forced her to quit tennis for several weeks before Wimbledon.

Miss Haydon, who has collected three major titles since Wimbledon, was far from fit when she played in the Inter-county championships last week. Diminutive Miss Catt fell and injured her leg playing for Sussex last week, and dispirited Miss Truman has been talking of quitting lawn tennis.

I forecast that Miss Ritchie will be Wimbledon champion within the next two years. Not since Maureen Connolly have I seen a girl with such beautiful controlled drives and outstanding match-play temperament. Her backhand, especially will bring joy to the purists of the game.

MRS. RYAN
"Always the same"

MRS. TAYLOR
"It was horrible."

MRS. BARNES

MRS. ILLINGWORTH
"Embarrassed"

Four wives and two girl friends of Yorkshire county cricketers complained last week that they were ordered out of the Headingley pavilion for talking.

Their chatter as they watched the county champions struggling against Surrey upset a member of the Leeds Cricket, Football and Athletic Club, which owns the ground. He told a steward: "I can't enjoy the cricket with this talking going on. You will have to ask these girls to move. They have no right to be here, anyway."

So in stepped the steward ...

Mrs. Ray Illingworth, wife of the spin bowler, Mrs. Mavis Ryan, wife of the fast bowler, Mrs. Jimmy Blinks, wife of the wicket-keeper, Mrs. Ken Taylor, wife of the batsman, Miss Anne Barnes, girl friend of all-rounder Brian Close, and Miss Lily Hall, girl friend of batsman Philip Sharpe.

EMBARRASSED

They were left standing formally in one of the few open spaces that could be found in the ground during Close's benefit match.

And they were warned: "Don't come back either. You shouldn't have been sitting there in the first place."

Said Mrs. Avril Taylor: "The way the whole thing was done was terrible. You would have thought we were creating some kind of disturbance."

Said Mrs. June Ryan: "It's always the same at Headingley. The wives are nowhere.

At tea-time I had to queue up and ended with a buttered teacake in a paper bag."

Said Miss Barnes: "It wasn't even a Yorkshire county member who complained. We were just talking quietly, as

Colony softball moves to a new ground

By OLLY VAS

Those who take interest in the affairs of softball these days will be gratified to hear that the Hongkong Softball Association have finally been granted the lease of a new field. As was mentioned in this column last December the venue for all future softball matches will be the official ground at Mission-road, just below the KGV School.

The stands are going up even as I write this bit of news and the ground should be ready well in advance of the date set for the opening of the 1961-62 playing season which date will have to be decided on by the Association when their Council meets this evening to make plans for the future.

Prior to the 1960-61 softball season all official games were played at the Central British Association ground on which now stands part of a new hospital. It was only late in 1960 that the Advisory Committee on Recreation Grounds allocated the old site at King's Park to the Softball Association.

Club house?

A spacious car park is located near the approach to the field which is conveniently accessible by public transport. Outfielders will, I am sure, have their judgment affected by the strong winds that blow through the field and will have to get used to it during games.

The site at Mission-road seems spacious enough to permit the erection of a suitable Club house and it is therefore to be hoped that some kind person might be persuaded by the Grounds Committee of the HKSA to fill a crying need for a small building with proper changing rooms and other facilities for the benefit to those who will shortly be spending most of their weekends playing and watching softball at the new ground.

Auxiliary Police soccer final

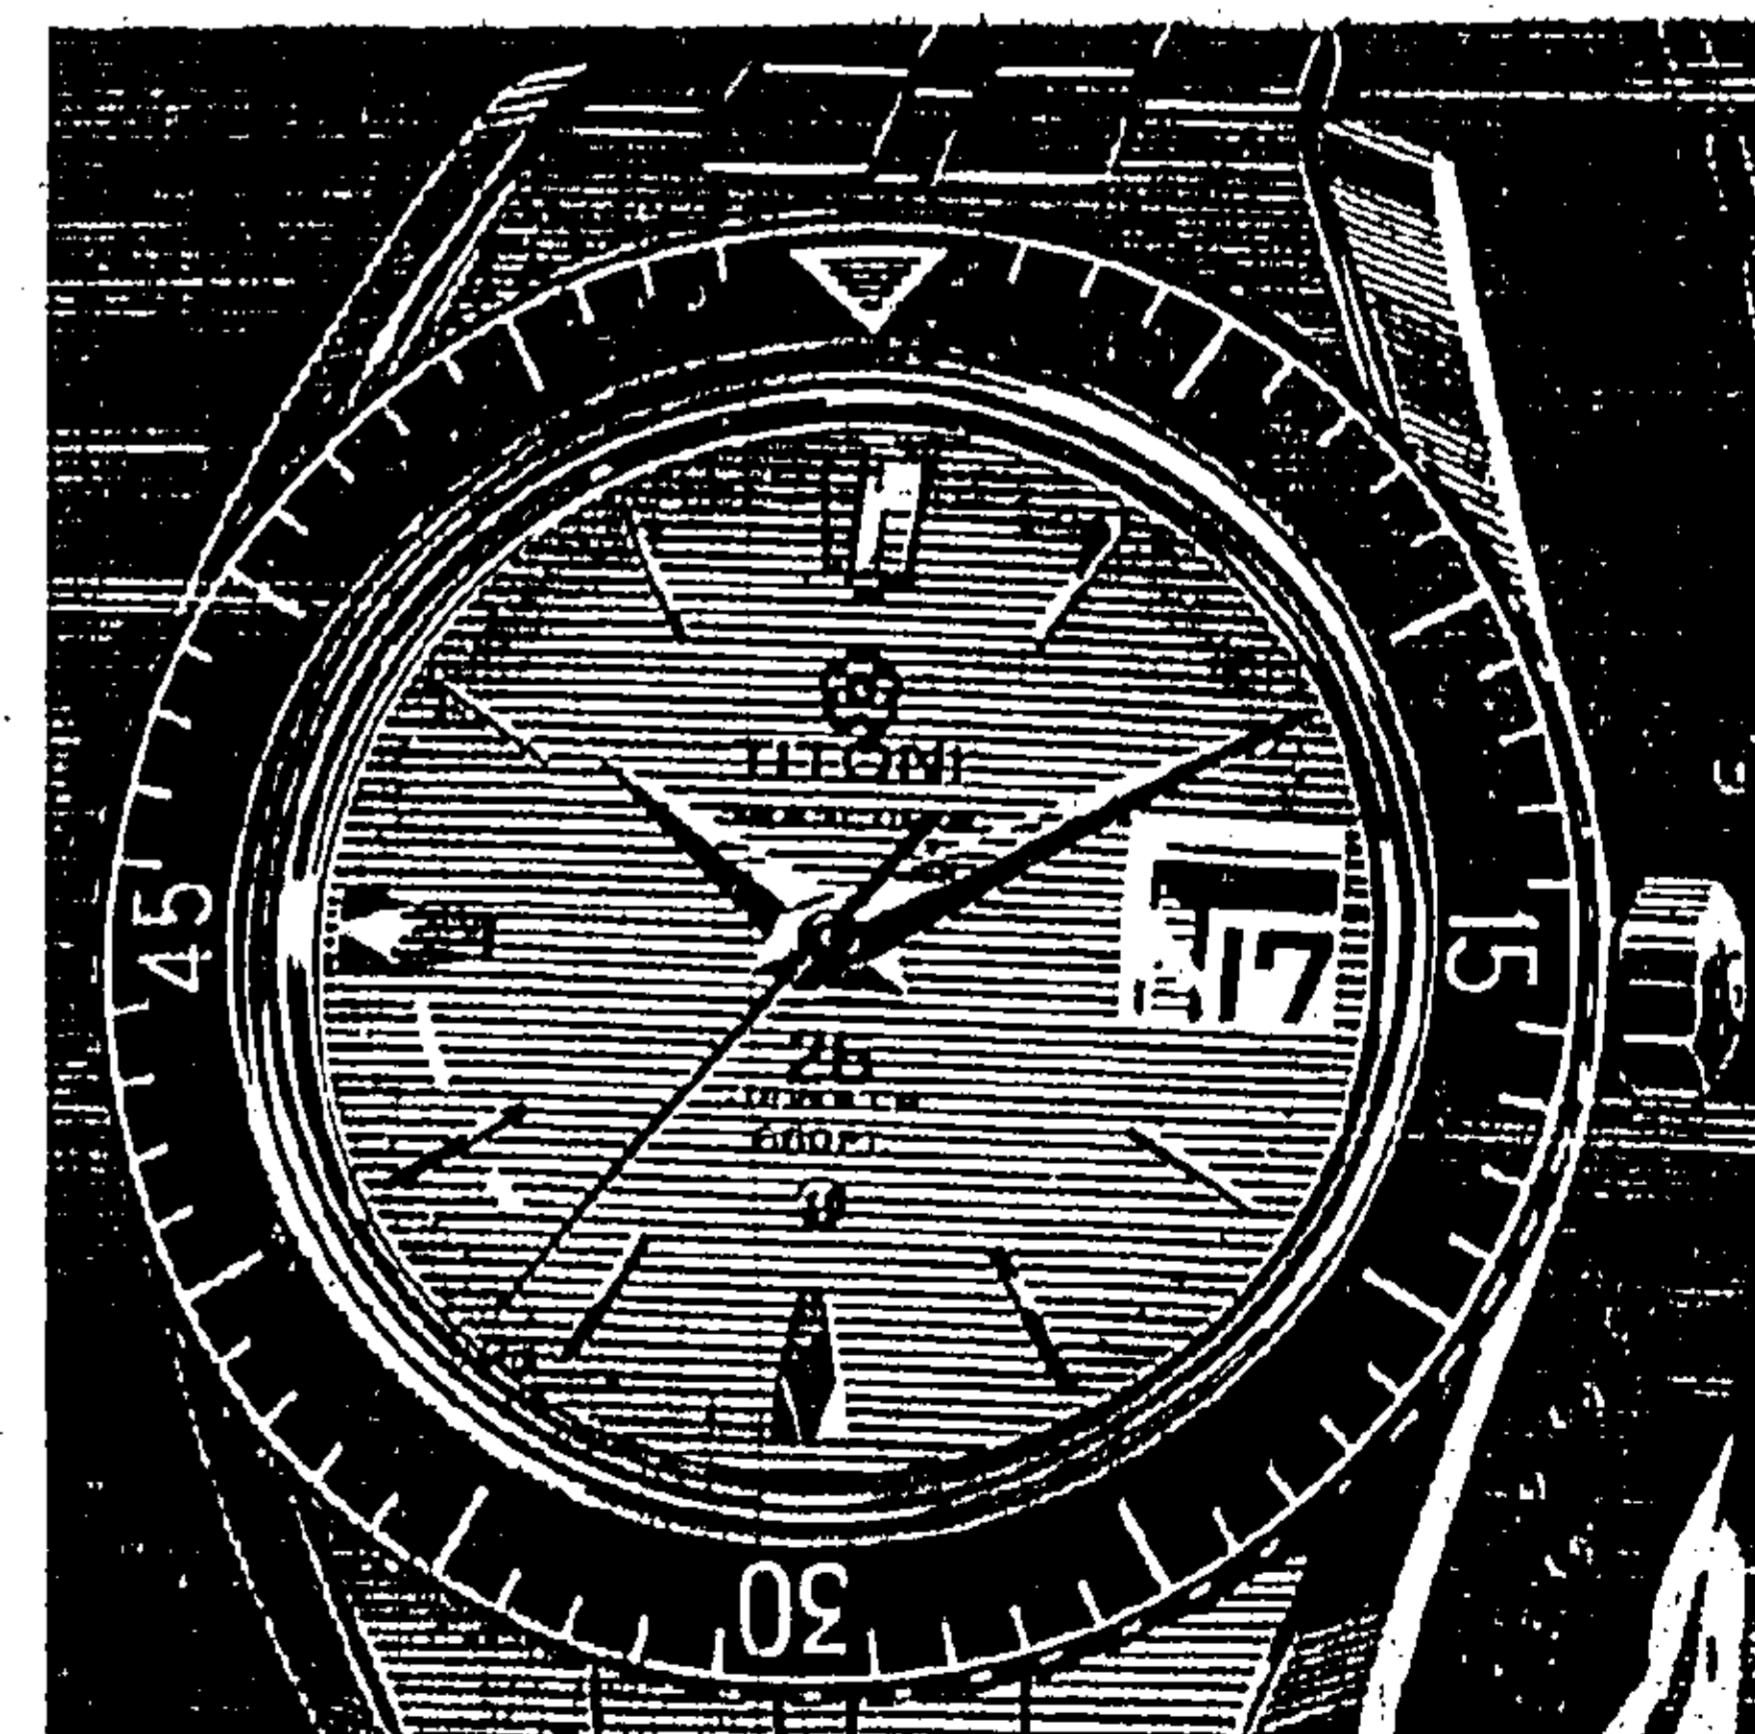

The final of the Hongkong Auxiliary Police Force Annual Inter-Divisional Football Competition for the "E. C. Van Helden Cup" will be played at the Southern Playground, Wanchai, on Tuesday, August 8, 1961, at 6.00 p.m.

The match will be immediately followed by a distribution of prizes won in the HKAPP's football, table tennis and the shooting competitions by Lady Turner.

Takes over work done by police NEW IMMIGRATION SERVICE STARTS

Man caught stealing from cars

An unemployed man Chiu Chun-ting, 29, of 695 Shanghai-street, ground floor, was sentenced to 12 months by Mr T. C. Chan at North Kowloon Magistracy this morning when he admitted three counts of larceny from vehicles and failing to report to the police while under supervision.

Three other counts of larceny from vehicles were taken into consideration by the Magistrate. Inspector Wong Hei-man, presiding, said that at 4.30 pm last Sunday, Mr Peter John Maddock, of 257 Prince Edward-road, first floor, was looking into the street from the window of his residence when he saw the defendant open the door of a private car parked outside his house.

He then saw defendant take out a pair of spectacles. Defendant walked over to another private car parked in front of the first one and took out two boxes of toys and two packets of cigarettes.

THIRD CAR

He then went to a third private car and took out an umbrella from it.

Mr Maddock, on seeing this went down and followed the defendant.

At Duke-street, Mr Maddock arrested him and brought him to the Kowloon City police station.

Police enquiries revealed that on May 15 defendant stole a file of documents from a private car parked in Connaught-road Central and also that he stole a radio-set and a necklace from a private car parked in Prince Edward-road on July 10.

The defendant admitted to police that he had sold these articles to an unknown person for $50, except the radio which he pawned for $20.

Police found that the defendant was under police supervision and had been released from prison on Feb. 10 this year.

Inspector Wong added that the defendant had a total of nine previous convictions.

Mr T. C. Chan commended Mr Maddock for his public spirit in arresting the defendant.

He also ordered all the articles recovered to be returned to the owners.

Three members of the Hongkong Women's Auxiliary Army Corps were this morning presented with Blue Lanyards by the Commander, Royal Signals, Lieut. Col. M. J. R. Mrs Brenda Lo, newly appointed receptionist-interpreter for BOAC at San Francisco International Airport, arrived in Hongkong yesterday to take her first official look at the other end of the airline's trans-Pacific jet route. Appointed four months ago to aid passengers from the Far East at San Francisco, Mrs Lo meets and sees off everyone of the airline's services. Born in Shanghai, she graduated from Cheikang University and speaks the Canton, Shanghai, and Mandarin dialects as well as English and Japanese. Mrs Lo (right) is shown greeting Miss Judy Chang, who represented Hongkong at the Miss International Beauty Congress at Long Beach, at San Francisco Airport. The cheongsam Mrs Lo is wearing was made by herself using a Chinese stewardess' uniform as a guide. During her four days' stay in Hongkong, she plans to have "quite a few" dresses made.

The driver of a lorry and his passenger had a miraculous escape from death yesterday afternoon when the vehicle collided with the express train from Canton at the level crossing at Taipo.

The gates at the crossing had been closed, and for some unknown reason the lorry crashed into the gate just as the train approached. The next instant there was a thundering smash as the train hit the lorry, but the driver and cooie in it were both flung clear of the train by the force of the impact, and escaped death. The lorry was completely demolished.
